

STATE OF THE UNION ADDRESS 2018

President Donald Trump will deliver his first formal State of the Union address at 9 PM tonight, before a joint session of Congress. Also in attendance will be the Speaker of the House, Paul Ryan, and Vice President, Mike Pence, along with the U.S. Supreme Court justices, the presidential cabinet and his joint of chiefs. There is also one designated survivor, a member of President Trump's cabinet who will not be in attendance, but will be sequestered in an undisclosed location in order to preserve the line of succession to the presidency in the event of a catastrophic attack.

As you view and listen to the speech, take notes of key facts below under the provided topics that will most likely be discussed.

Immigration/border security

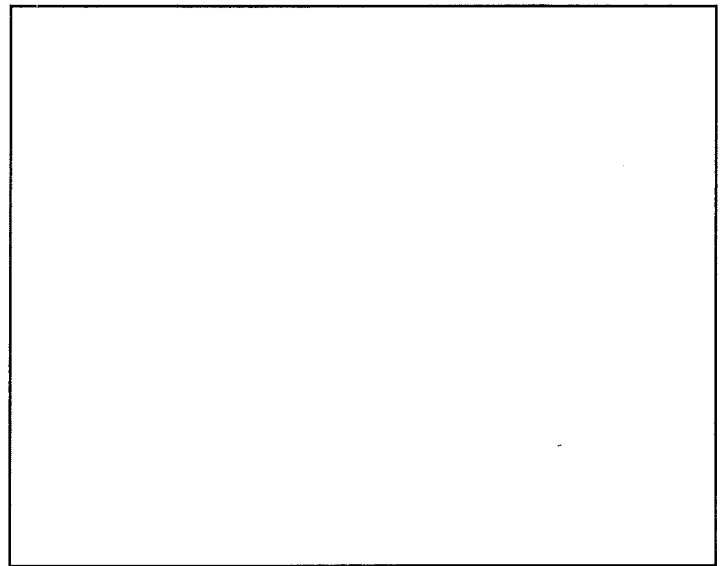

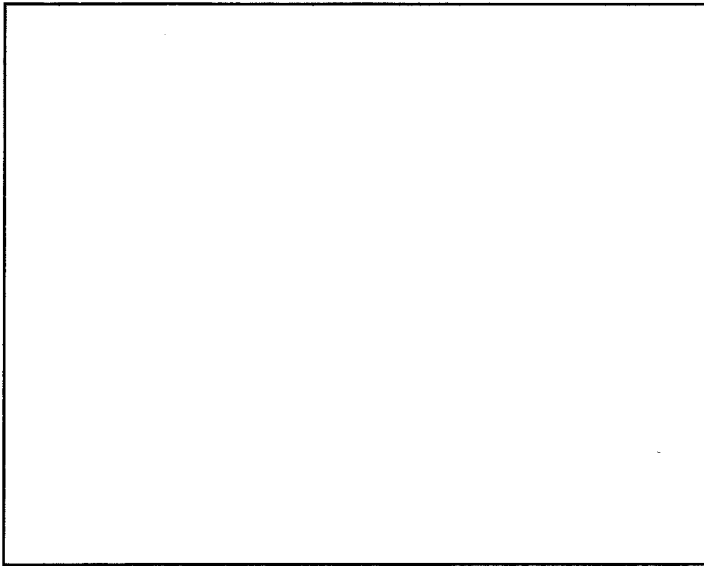

--

economic growth/tax changes/ trade

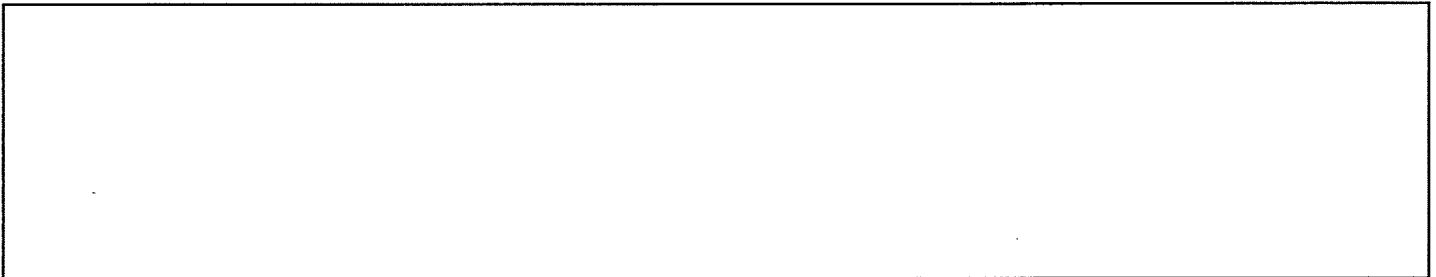

--

national security

infrastructure

U.S. Military

Extra Credit: Following the State of the Union Address, list the commentary given by both parties regarding the speech. You may need to view media from both sides, i.e. Fox or FoxNews for the Republican's perspective, and NBC-ABC-CBS-CNN-etc. for the Democrat's perspective. Rep. Joe Kennedy III (MA) will be giving the rebuttal for the Democrats.

REPUBLICAN

DEMOCRAT

